SEWER DISPUTE
BEFORE SQUIRE.Justice Buttermore Reserves Decision in Suit Against Parkhill.

BOROUGH SOLICITOR THERE

Attorney S. Ray Shelby Appeared in Behalf of the Defendant and Claimed
Borough Owns the Greenwood
Sewer—Trust Co. Claims It.

The first engagement in the battle to determine the ownership of the Greenwood sewer system was fought this morning before Justice of the Peace P. M. Buttermore of the West Side, but the decision was not announced. Squire Buttermore announced that he would hand down his verdict next Saturday.

The case was the suit of John Duggan, agent for the Title & Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania, against J. H. Parkhill, $25 damages being claimed from the defendant for tapping a sewer on Green street. Parkhill had a permit from the borough and the borough maintains it owns the sewer. Duggan argued otherwise.

Duggan and Parkhill were the only witnesses. Duggan threw some light on a dark subject when he declared the Greenwood Land Company to have been a myth, that it never really existed, and that there is no record of it. He says the Greenwood Land Company was the Title & Trust Company. The testimony of both witnesses was limited to a statement of the facts in the case.

Attorney H. S. Matthews, for the Title & Trust Company, presented the argument of the plaintiff. He insisted the sewer was private property and that Parkhill had no right to tap it without permission; and that by doing so the plaintiff company had been damaged to the extent asked.

Solicitor S. Ray Shelby, representing both the borough and Mr. Parkhill, pointed out that the sewer had been laid by the land company but was paid for by the purchasers of lots, who were charged an additional price because of the improvement. He insisted that when Greenwood was annexed to Conneltsville, the sewer system became the property of the borough and that property owners had the right to tap the sewers upon securing the proper permit from the borough.

Squire Buttermore gave close attention to the arguments but announced he would give them careful consideration before handing down his decision.

Younkin Wants
Ballots Right

Attorney F. E. Younkin, one of the Republican nominees for School Director, has taken up with the County Commissioners the matter of arranging the names of School Board candidates on the ballot in such a manner that there will be less confusion than that attended the primaries last Saturday.

The Commissioners will be requested to divide the candidates by terms, placing the names under the head of the term they are running for. In this manner it will be possible to mark a ballot intelligently.

During the primary election many voters voted for seven candidates, but did so in such a manner that more names were marked under certain terms than were allowed. On the two old parties alone are 11 candidates, added to which are the Socialist nominees. To place these names alphabetically under a single head and leave the voters to pick out three names for six years and two each for the four and two year terms would make unnecessary confusion and trouble.

McCormick Taken
Home by Friend

John McCormick the man who has given the police considerable worry for some days past, was taken to his home in Philadelphia today by a friend who came at the request of J. P. Murphy, McCormick's brother in law and a well known politician of that city.

McCormick would leave only with the understanding that he had not returned to his home until he has had a chance to be caught up. His condition is such improved. He reported the implication that he is crazy and when shown the telegram sent to Philadelphia by Burgess Evans he declared that's wrong. I'm not crazy. I'm and his friend left on No. 6.

Cloudy Weather.

Clouds tonight generally fair Sunday and cooler in the noon weather bulletin.

The above cut is from an excellent likeness taken of the late Albert Darlington Hoyt, when he represented the State Senate from the Fourth District. The funeral of Col Hoyt is being held from his late home at Uniontown today. A number of Conneltsville people left at 1 o'clock to attend.

LIGHTS AT HOSPITAL GO OUT IN MIDST OF AN OPERATION.

Lamp and Lantern Used Last Night by Surgeon in Removing Appendix of Geo. Satterfield.

A Cottage State hospital physician, Miss Mabel Craft, the superintendent, and assisting nurses had an experience last night during the progress of an operation which they will not forget for some time. George Satterfield, aged 33 years, a well known U. S. O. conductor, was admitted to the hospital last night suffering from a sudden attack of appendicitis. An immediate operation was necessary and just as the physician had reached the most critical part of the operation the lights went off and didn't come on until after 8 o'clock this morning.

The attending physician stated it was the most difficult operation, under the circumstances, he had performed in years.

A lamp and lantern were resorted to and pressed into service and the operation was completed by the aid of lamp light. It was about 2:30 o'clock this morning when it was completed. The patient stood the operation remarkably well and today at noon was reported to be resting easily.

Conductor Satterfield met with an accident near Uniontown last January which resulted in the loss of his right arm. He resides in Conneltsville.

No report has been received of the lights being out any other place, the trouble at the hospital being local.

Chestnut Crop
Was Real Bumper

The chestnut harvest in this county has been known for years as being gathered every tree is heavily laden with the nuts, and they are of superior size and flavor, extraordinarily free from worms and decay. There has been very little frost as yet, but in the more exposed places the buds have ripened and fallen and the nuts are being gathered in great quantities. On the lowlands many of the buds are still clinging to the branches.

Chestnut hunters are to be seen in all parts of the mountain and nearly all of them are successful. The ones who penetrate to the more inaccessible places, however, are the most fortunate. If the weather permits many parties will go to the mountains tomorrow.

Plenty of Money for the Yough

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—A committee from the McKeesport Board of Trade was in Washington yesterday to inquire into the status of the improvement of the Youghiogheny river from McKeesport to West Newton. The delegation was met here by Representative John Dalzell, who accompanied them to the War Department.

The chief engineers informed them that there would be no need of an appropriation by Congress for the Yough next year. He said there remains in the fund previously appropriated $900,000, which will be all that the engineers can expend during the fiscal year of 1913.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR ARGUMENTS.

Set Next Thursday as Day to Take Up City Election Appeal.

ATTORNEY HIGBEE NOTIFIED

He and D. M. Hertzog Will Appear
Before the Highest Tribunal of the State to Argue That City Election
Should Not Be Deferred.

Attorney E. C. Higbee stated at a meeting in Pittsburgh, has set next Thursday, October 12, as the day to hear arguments in the appeal which is hoped to prevent the city election from being deferred two years.

Attorneys Higbee and Hertzog say they hope to have the Supreme Court order the placing of W. A. Bishop's name on the ballot at the November election as a candidate for Select Council in the Fifthward. It is hoped by the attorneys to have the decision handed down before the election on November 7. Just what will happen if the Supreme Court reverses the Fayette county decision in this matter is causing considerable speculation. Would there be time for a special primary election to nominate candidates on both tickets? Could such a primary be ordered by the court? If it could, how is the city ticket to be arranged?

Many ticklish questions have been raised and must be settled if the election is ordered. A merry mixup is promised before the matter is settled if the Supreme Court decides the election should have been held.

Revolution is
On in Portugal

United Press Telegram
LONDON, Oct. 7.—Reports received here say that the Royalist forces were defeated by the Republican forces in the battle of Braganza. It is said the Royalist column has been surrounded.

Portuguese dispatches say that two modern battleships which the Royalists purchased in a mysterious manner are ready to bombard the town as soon as the land battle has begun.

Rumors say the Republican soldiers are deserting. Poverty is besetting the northern Portuguese peasants and they are willing to fight for anybody that feeds them.

Premier Chagas in a statement today admitted that 2,500 Royalist soldiers have crossed the northern frontier into Portugal.

LONDON, England, Oct. 7.—King Manuel is still at Richmond and denies that he intends leaving England. He shows little enthusiasm over news from his native country.

Italians Are Smashing Turks

United Press Telegram
LONDON, Oct. 7.—The first week of the war closed today with all the news thus far taken by Italy. Italy has fallen and Turkey is inert and plainly helpless.

Disquieting news has been received from Athens where it is reported that the first corps of the Greek army is being mobilized and feverish activity marks the moves of the Greek war department.

SOMERSET JUDGESHIP HANGS ON LOWER TURKEYFOOT VOTE.

Berkey Adherents This Morning Bitterly Opposed Opening of Ballot Box Which May Cause Their Defeat.

Special to The Courier
SOMERSET, Oct. 7.—On the vote of Lower Turkeyfoot township probably hangs the result of the Republican judicial nomination in Somerset county and a bitter contest was waged this morning over the opening of the ballot box from that district. Judge Kooser heard warm arguments all morning and at noon announced he would hand down his decision this afternoon.

The Berkey followers are fighting hard to prevent the ballot box from being opened. The official count with this one district missing, gives Berkey the Republican nomination for judge by 15 votes. According to the return sheet both Berkey and Ruppel received 79 votes in Lower Turkeyfoot, but the voters' list showed only 104 Republican adherents.

publican ballot cast. Sheriff Wm. H. Walmer returned this evening with the ballot box and this morning arguments were made before Judge Kooser over the opening of it. The Berkey attorneys cited decisions sustaining them in their objections to opening the box and recounting the vote. The Ruppel attorneys cited as many decisions as they could should be made. Both sides fired a battery of heavy legal artillery to sustain their arguments.

The Ruppel men claim that a recount of Lower Turkeyfoot's vote will offset the Berkey majority of 15 and give the nomination to their candidate. The Berkey followers figure they have the nomination now and would prefer not to take chances on the recount.

BRING CARS HERE ON RAILS ALL WAY.

First Time Trip Was Made
by West Penn From McKeesport

WITHOUT LEAVING TRACKS

E. R. Kooser and Fred Ehret Had Charge of the Cars Which Made
Circuitous Trip to the Coke Region
Came via Trafford City.

A trolley car was brought from McKeesport into the coke region for the first time yesterday under its own power and without leaving the rails. Two cars made the trip in this manner in charge of E. R. Kooser of the West Penn transportation department, and Motorman Clyde Ehret of Greensburg. It was necessary to bring the cars to the Greenwood bars to be overhauled and put away for the winter.

Since the development of the West Penn's trolley line from the West Penn has been able to run its cars to and from McKeesport, when occasion arose by hauling them across the trackless crossing in Irwin transfer cars from the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg tracks, which end at one side of the street to the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & West moreland and which begin on the other.

Yesterday the cars were turned over to the Pittsburgh Railway Company at Ringo street, McKeesport, and taken over the lines of that railway to Trafford City, where the cars were switched on the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg tracks and brought to Irwin and Greensburg, and then to Conneltsville.

If a connection could be established between the P. McK. & G. and the P. McK. & W. tracks at Irwin cars could be run through the McKeesport by a direct route. Eventually the West Penn will have its own through connections to McKeesport by way of West Newton and Scott Haven.

"Fire" Queers
T. R.'s Speech

United Press Telegram
OYSTERVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—A city of fire without deluded Col. Roosevelt's speech last evening before the Village Improvement Association. The Colonel had just started when the voice from without interrupted the hall.

Members of the village volunteer fire department made a noisy exit and stood not on the order of their going. Many of the spectators deemed the fire of more importance than the speech and went also.

The Colonel deferred the delivery of his remarks until the firemen had returned to their seats.

Hard Rain Fell

A hard rain fell during the night one of the worst of the many downpours of the past few weeks. It continued during the early morning hours before dawn. The rain caused the river to rise from 15 feet last evening to 50 this morning.

Today was cold with a drizzling rain and snow throughout the morning. The temperature at 8 o'clock was 32, but fell lower than the 54 of yesterday morning.

HILARIOUS BLADES
STONE DWELLINGS.

Panes of Glass Shattered
Along the Narrows Road
Last Night.

POLICE SEEK THE CULPRITS

Mud Bespattered Buggy Is Returned to Dull's Livery With Nearly Dozen Stones in the Bed—Identity of the Pair Not Yet Determined

The police are looking for two roistering blades who in a spirit of riotous hilarity hurled several stones at the houses of the H. C. Frick Coke Company along the Narrows road above Davidson. It was about 10:30 last night that the occupants of two company houses were aroused by the crash of splintered glass as small boulders hurtled through the panes and landed on the floor within.

At House No. 39 even the shutters were torn down by the force of the stones. It is said the young men hired a rig from Harry Dull's livery stable last evening. When they returned about 11 o'clock the horse and buggy were splattered with mud in the bed of the buggy. 10 good sized stones were found. According to the statement of Stable Boy John H. Ridgway of the Stable House mine the young men drove through the settlement along the Narrows road but turned and went back to the old limestone quarry, where they loaded the buggy bed with stones. They rained themselves driving down the road and heaving stones at the houses in range. Several of the stones took effect and the glaziers will be kept busy replacing the damage.

The identity of the young men is not known as yet. Because the offense was committed beyond the borough limits Burgess Evans' force has no jurisdiction, but it is understood information will be given out before Squire W. P. Clark when it is learned who the misdoers are.

Rain Does Damage
in Furniture Store

The hard rain of last night did damage to the stock of the Wallace Furniture Company as the result of the roof springing a leak. Most of the damage was done to the big stock of curtains on the third floor.

The water poured in under the roof and one side of the building for its entire length was practically saturated. On the second and third floors considerable damage was done by the water.

Heavy Blasts
Shot Yesterday

The discharge of five heavy blasts last evening caused considerable curiosity and uneasiness because of the loud reports which accompanied them. The blasts were discharged about 6 o'clock along the Western Maryland line above Greenwood.

The entire town was jolted by the force of the blasts. These are the first heavy charges that have been put off near the borough for some weeks past. No damage was reported.

A WORTHY APPEAL FOR NEW CHURCH.

The Coke Town of Monarch
Is Trying to Get One.

THE PLANS THAT ARE ON

Led by C. W. Beerbower of Lelsen-ring No. 1, Who Has Been Active in the Work There With Rev. Ryland,
Pastor at Lelsenring No. 1.

The criticism is frequently made that some towns have too many churches. Often the criticism is a just one. About five miles from Conneltsville is the mining town of Monarch, which has no church building and no church organization. This may seem strange when the fact is taken into consideration that there are over 500 men employed by the H. C. Frick Coke Company at that place. In and near the place are about 50 Protestant families. The nearest church is at Lelsenring No. 1, about two miles distant.

The town of Monarch has a Sunday school with an enrollment of nearly 150 boys and girls. The only place for the Sunday school to meet is in one of the six rooms of the public school building. The use of the school building for Sunday school and preaching purposes is not entirely satisfactory. More efficient work could be done if the people had a building set apart for such work.

C. W. Beerbower is the superintendent of the Sunday school which has an excellent corps of teachers. He has inaugurated a movement to secure a small chapel. Two of the "Pilgrim Boys" have pledged something over a hundred dollars. In view of the fact that Mr. Beerbower was a member of this band it is believed they will all contribute liberally. They know that the work will be a success with such a good leader.

The people of Monarch led by Mr. Beerbower expect to provide the lot for the church and in addition they are raising money to build a new church. They know that the work will be a success with such a good leader. The people of Monarch led by Mr. Beerbower expect to provide the lot for the church and in addition they are raising money to build a new church. They know that the work will be a success with such a good leader.

The Monarch Chapel will form a branch of the Lelsenring church and will be regularly supplied with preaching and services. It is hoped in connection with this charge to build a large, handsome, modern, as it is difficult to secure a place for the minister to live.

OWENSDALE, Oct. 7.—The following is the record of the Morgan team for the season of 1911: Morgan 6; Scottsdale Keystones 2; Morgan 10; Northern Pick tennis 2; Morgan 19; Hecla 0; Morgan 9; Scottsdale Independents 1; Morgan 8; Car Shops 2; Morgan 15; Scottsdale Keystones 10; Morgan 6; Adelaide 2; Morgan 5; Car Shops 3; Morgan 11; Scottsdale Keystones 6; Morgan 10; Hamilton 6; Morgan 9; Bryce Brothers 1; Morgan 2; Perryopolis 8; Morgan 11; Continental 15; Morgan 7; Lehighville 8; Morgan 1; Car Shops 10; Morgan 6; Alverton 7; Morgan 7; Buckeye 8; Morgan 2; Trauger 6; Morgan 7; Trauger 10; Everson Keystones 7; Adelaide 6; forfeited a game by leaving the field.

The season of 1911 did not fully come up to the expectations as the team practically went to pieces after the games at Trauger on the Fourth of July. Before the Trauger games the Morgan team was going like wildfire and bid fair to be the champion amateur team of the coke region. About half of the season's games were played away from home.

During the season two promising young speed artists were brought out; Lee Klingensmith and Lloyd Robinson, which players many baseball critics over the region claim to be among the best players in their positions in the region.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology Has Proved That Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Nabrow's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or seborrhea by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality, causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff, hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Over 200 members of the First Presbyterian Sunday school were present at a banquet held last evening in the church chapel. The affair was in charge of A. M. N. Class of the Sunday school and was the result of a membership contest which came to a close a short time ago. The contest lasted six months and the Sunday school attendance has been largely increased.

At the beginning of the contest the agreement was that the losing side was to banquet the winning side. The red side won and as the result the banquet was given by the blue side. A delightful musical program, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections followed the banquet.

TIN PLATE IMPORTS.

Large Advance in Foreign Prices Cause an Increase.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—Tin plate imports are making their lowest record in many years, according to a statement just prepared by the Department of Commerce and Customs. It shows that the total quantity of tin plate imported into the United States during August was but 657,263 pounds, valued at $25,859, against 9,129,633 pounds, valued at $274,652, in August of last year. In July the quantity imported was 527,720 pounds, valued at $21,971, against 2,417,637 pounds, valued at $715,685 in July, 1910.

The total quantity of the tin plates imported in July and August of this year has been but 1,184,983 pounds, valued at $47,849, against $3,291,259 valued at $999,237, in the corresponding months of last year. Mentioning the exports of domestic tin plates, have advanced from about 2,000,000 pounds in July and August, 1910, to 23,000,000 in July and August, 1911.

This heavy decline in the importation of tin plates is understood to be due chiefly to the large advance in prices of this article in foreign countries. Most of the tin plates imported in recent years has been for use in the manufacture of cans and other articles used in the export trade, in which case 90 per cent. of the duty was refunded under the drawback law. The marked advance in price of tin plates abroad has apparently led to the substitution of domestic tin plate for the foreign article in the manufacture of a large proportion of the cans and other articles for use in exportation.

Fifty Years Ago Today.

Oct. 7.

Colonel R. C. Trenchard of the Union army had invented a peculiar portable boat used on several expeditions in Oregon. It was of light framework of thin and narrow boards in lengths suitable for packing, and connected by hinges, the various sections folding into so small a compass that it was conveniently carried on the back of mules.

The sporting world was enthusiastic over the feats of two long distance runners, Lovett, champion of England, ran seven miles in 37 minutes 27 seconds, and Deerfoot, a Seneca Indian, covered twelve miles in 65 minutes 5 seconds.

THE OPEN SEASON

For Small Games Does Not Open Until November 1st.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 7.—Secretary Joseph Kaibhus of the Pennsylvania Game Commission has issued a brief statement for the information of hunters. He calls attention to the fact that the open season for wild turkeys, quail, ruffed grouse (commonly called pheasant), quail and rabbits begins November 1, instead of October 15, as heretofore.

Secretary Kaibhus refers to the delay in the issue of the pamphlet, known as "The Fish, Game and Forestry Laws," and explains that the press of work and some unexpected complications are responsible. It will be ready, he says, about October 15, and copies will be sent to applicants as soon as possible after that date. This pamphlet, he adds, is of value to hunters, as it contains information with regard to the open and closed seasons for game, etc.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN SUNDAY'S SERVICE.

Scottdale Methodist Church
Will Not Close Tomorrow for Conference.

DANIEL W. SHUPE WILL PREACH

High School Seniors Hold Party at
D. S. Loucks—Clearing Away the Debris of the Fire—Other Notes of News.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 7.—Although it is usually the custom to close down the church activities on Conference Sunday there will be regular services in the First Methodist Episcopal church tomorrow morning and evening. The pastor, Rev. R. H. Mansell, D. D., is attending the meeting of the Pittsburgh Conference in Wilkesburg, and will have the distinction of preaching in the Emory church tomorrow, a church where he was formerly a pastor. Several of the members expect to be in the city tomorrow to hear various ones of the ministers who will be in the pulpits. In consequence of all this the young people have taken charge of the services tomorrow. The Sunday school will meet as usual, and for a preacher they will have Daniel W. Shupe, teacher of the Y. M. C. A. Bible class and one of the finest of local Bible students. In the evening the Epworth League will hold special services and some of the young people will preach, with short, spirited sermons. There will be special music at all the sessions and all are invited to present. Several of the members went to Conference yesterday. The delegates from the congregation, who were elected several weeks ago, Robert Wiley and F. V. Perry, accompanied by D. C. Boyd went in on the morning train. Dr. L. T. Gilbert accompanied by Mrs. Gilbert and Dr. O. I. Hoss and Mrs. Hoss went to Wilkesburg in Dr. Gilbert's car, and will also attend the sessions.

Class Hold's Party.
The class of 1912 of the Scottdale High School spent a pleasant evening when entertained by two members of the class, Misses Grace and Ella Loucks, at the beautiful country home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Loucks, just west of town. The event was a marshmallow toast, and the girls class turned out for a good time, on the day that closed the week's school work.

Clearing Away.
Workmen have begun to clear away the debris occasioned by the fire of Tuesday morning. With picks and axes workmen attacked the framework of the town of the bowling alleys and the Adams Express Company which had fallen over the sidewalk on Pittsburgh street. In front of the two former places named, Workmen have also been busy with the collapsed frame building occupied by the Peerless Amusement Company in this case which was burned and fell. Dennis Deffenau has what clothing and had clothing the family did not have burned up, hung out in an attempt to get it all right, so that it may be used again. Mr. Deffenau also expects to get his restaurant going again as soon as possible, as his friends all ask that this be done. M. M. Trout is working on the front of his meat market, and McBeth & Taylor have moved over into the drug store building. The Adams Express Company is doing business at the P. R. R. station. T. J. Diskin has removed his real estate office to the second floor of the Central Hotel building, which is being repaired as rapidly as possible.

Civic Committee Call.
The Civic Committee of the First Baptist church, Rev. William G. Hissell, pastor, has been called to meet at the church at 3:15 Sunday afternoon.

Joint Institute.
There will be a joint institute of the teachers of the East Huntingdon and Upper Tyrone townships at the Peterson business office hall in the Savings & Trust building this evening. Quite a pleasing program has been arranged.

United Brethren Church.
Tomorrow will be the first Sunday of the new conference year at the United Brethren church, and the pastor, Rev. C. W. Henselwood, announced that the morning subject will be "Mary," the sermon being followed by Communion. In the evening the subject of the sermon will be "Martin."

At Christian Church.
Rev. O. J. Howarth, the pastor, announces that he will preach at the Christian church on Sunday morning on "Not Disobedient to the heavenly Vision," and in the evening "Weighted in the Balance."

At Jacobs Creek.
Rev. H. G. Sawyer, formerly a mill worker here, and pastor for some time of the United Brethren church at Youngwood, will preach at the Jacobs Creek Methodist Episcopal church, at 7:30 Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Sawyer is going into evangelistic work, and this will probably be the last time for a good while that his many friends about here will have an opportunity of hearing him.

A Kitchen Shower.
Miss Mable Clair Lloyd, whose marriage to Charles Herrick Wiley will be an event of this month, was given a kitchen shower last evening, which was arranged as a surprise and carried off most successfully. A large collection of kitchen utensils of aluminum was received, a dainty lunch served and an enjoyable time had. There were present the Wiley-Sherick and Humphries families, the Loucks, McKee, Coughenour, Breaglio, Sholar and Boyd families.

OWENSDALE.

Special to The Courier.

OWENSDALE, Oct. 7.—M. P. Kane, of Scottsdale, was attending to matters of business at Morgan Station yesterday. Mr. Kane is interested in the custom coal business at that place. During his early days Mike had essayed to become a coke operator, but some how or other he drifted into journalism and became the chief English alinker on a lively Scottsdale sheet with which he struggled for some time. During his stay in newspaper work Mike became inclined to rebuffs and was forced to accumulate an enormous capacity for assimilating hard knocks. Whether he became discouraged or just got mad and quit, history doesn't relate, but nevertheless, Mike hankered to come back into peaceful civilization and he took up his abode in the Morgan valley where he could sit on his back porch in the evenings, gaze at the coke smoke winding about the clouds and set his cultivated mind to propounding the moral of Milton's "Paradise Lost." One point about Mike's career is that his jovial disposition is an asset that never deserted him.

Andrew Laing, of Gans, Pa., has removed to this place.

Mrs. James Smith of East Scottsdale, was visiting here yesterday.

William Hunkler, of Conneville, was visiting relatives here Thursday.

Church announcements:
At the Owensdale United Brethren church, Sunday school at 9:30; church services at 10:30, preaching by Rev. J. J. Funk; Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:30; prayer services at 7:30.

Sunday school services at the Morgan Station Union Sunday School at 10:30 A. M.; prayer services at 7:30 P. M.

Sunday School at the Bellvue Sunday school at 2 o'clock.

Rev. Watson Had Important Place
Rev. C. M. Watson, former pastor of the Christian church here but now located at Norfolk, Va., took an active part in the State convention of the Churches of Christ in Virginia at Newport News early this week. During a series of three half-hour devotional talks on "Power," Rev. Watson also delivered the prayer for the State Christian Endeavor.

Rev. Watson seems to have taken hold of things down in Virginia with the same vim and vigor with which he went into them here, and as successfully.

PIMPLES SO
DISFIGURING HE SHUNNED FRIENDS

Face Completely Covered. Blackheads, Too. Lasted Four Years. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Face is Now Smooth.

"I was bothered with pimples and blackheads in the worst way for over four years. My face and arms were completely covered with them. The pimples would come out on my face and enter all up. They would scab over, and make my face sore, besides being so disgusting that I shunned my friends. I tried facial cream, balms and benzoin with no effect."

"One night I asked a friend what was good for pimples, and he advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which I did. I would wash my face first with hot water and Cuticura Soap, and then put on some Cuticura Ointment, let it stay on five minutes, and then wash my face again with the Cuticura Soap. It would draw the blackheads out as nice, and the pimples, oh, my, it was one grand relief to go among my friends and be jolly again. After using two boxes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, my face is as smooth as if I had never had a pimple on it. I cannot speak too highly of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, my face is as smooth as if I had never had a pimple on it. I know they will after giving them just one trial." (Signed) Arthur E. Caswell, Jr., P. O. No. 2, Portsmouth, N. H., May 6, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 25¢ worth of the skin and scalp will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 8, Boston.

M. E. CONFERENCE ELECTS DELEGATES.

Spirited Contests to Pick Laymen and the Ministers.

DR. CONNER IS THE LEADER

Efforts to Place Favored Candidates Met With Speedy Action That Resulted in Defeat For All of Them. Blairville Next Meeting Place.

After months of campaigning, which became quite spirited in the past few days, 12 delegates—six ministers and six laymen—were yesterday elected by the Pittsburgh Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church now holding its annual convention in the South Avenue Church, Wilkesburg, as its representatives at the quadrennial general conference of the church at Minneapolis, Minn., next May.

The ministerial delegates are: Rev. Dr. W. P. Conner, superintendent of the Blairville district; Rev. Dr. J. J. Hill, superintendent of the Blairville district; Rev. Dr. J. B. Risk, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Uniontown, Pa.; Rev. J. W. Cary, pastor of the First Church of Indiana, Pa.; Rev. Dr. N. L. Brown, pastor of the Brushport Methodist Episcopal Church of Pittsburgh, and Rev. Dr. S. S. Ross, superintendent of the McKeesport district. One of the three alternate ministerial delegates is Rev. Dr. J. M. Thiburn, Jr., superintendent of the Allegheny district. Ballots were cast for the other two alternate delegates but they were not counted yesterday.

The following are the lay delegates: James A. Houston of Sewickley and Elmer K. Kliney of Belmore of the Allegheny district; Norman H. Humphreys of the Blairville district; James McCune of McKeesport, of the McKeesport district; Harry G. Samson of Pittsburgh of the Pittsburgh district; and Claude E. Towser of Monacaugh of the Washington district. The following three were elected as alternate delegates: S. W. Florer of Greensburg of the Blairville district; W. D. McFall of Pittsburgh of the Pittsburgh district; and W. P. Richardson of Bentleyville of the Washington district.

The election in both bodies was hotly contested and consumed the greater part of the day. Instead of using the Australian secret ballot system, as had been planned, both conferences had their members write six names on a slip of paper and deposit these as their ballot. The first ballot thus cast by the ministerial conference contained a total of 60 names, of which two Drs. Conner and Hill, had a majority of the 244 ballots cast, and were declared elected. Drs. Risk and Cary were elected on the second ballot, Dr. Brown on the third and Dr. Ross on the fourth.

At the opening of the laymen's conference considerable opposition was manifested by some of the delegates over a rule contained in the report of the committee on rules in favor of having each delegate write the names of six on a slip of paper, which was to serve as a ballot. A group of the candidates had received in political methods and sought to detain the personnel of the delegation to the General Conference by having the names of their six favorites printed in the form of "slates" and trying to have these printed slates used. These printed slates were ruled out and resulted in the defeat of practically every name appearing thereon. It required three ballots to elect the six delegates and two ballots to choose the three alternates.

The Lay Electoral Association opened its session at 10 A. M., with 253 laymen delegates present, nearly every Methodist Episcopal church in the Pittsburgh Conference being represented. The gathering was called to order by A. G. Williams of Butler, the temporary chairman, and Rev. Dr. E. Trumbull Lee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, where the laymen voted, delivered the invocation. Officers were elected as follows: President, Attorney Harvey Henderson; vice president, A. G. Williams of Butler, and T. R. Wylie of Elizabeth, secretary.

The laymen adopted resolutions which are expected to arouse much widespread discussion, as in the general conference is memorialized to take up the matter of "destructive theories of higher critics appearing in the Sunday School Journal," one of the most generally used periodicals in the Sunday schools of the Methodist Episcopal church. The only vote cast was by Attorney W. H. Pratt, who cautioned the convention not to get hastily on the resolution, saying that it was a sharp criticism of the publication and its editors, who are prominent churchmen. Another resolution asked the general conference to establish an Episcopal residence in Pittsburgh.

At the opening session of the ministerial conference in South Avenue church in the morning, a class of ten ministers ranging in age from young men just graduated from college to a veteran local preacher with long flowing gray beard, were admitted into the full membership of the conference. Those in the class were: Harry D. Rudolph, Wilson G. Cole, Grover C. Folmer, Raymond L. Archer, Charles T. Whitlatch, Thomas F. Chilton, H. K. Kliney, Edward G. Hays, Thomas H. Morris and Robert Carroll.

Ministerial students were promoted as follows: First to second year—Oscar G. Cooke, J. J. Broadhead, Percy E. Burr, Foster M. Gray, Richard P. Andrews, who also received deacon's orders. Third to fourth year—Charles A. Hartung, Leroy L. Lord, John C. Mattoon, H. C. Critchlow, Stewart O. Smith, T. M. Peniler, J. Lane Miller, and Jacob S. Shinton. The following were graduated from the four-year course and granted older's orders:

John Allison, Jr., Watson Brackston, Philip J. Chilcote, Thomas F. Chilcote, Chester A. Clark, George M. Daugherty and George J. Rowe. L. G. Ritchie was passed from second to third year and granted deacon's orders. Samuel W. Bryan of Ohio, a local preacher, was granted ordination papers as a local elder.

That the rudiments of law, sanitation and business should be taught in the church on Sunday by laymen, and that regular course of study and curriculum in these and in sociological subjects, leading to graduation, should be instituted in the church was the purport of a memorial addressed to the general conference.

Blairville was decided upon as the place for holding the next conference. Homestead was the only other place asking for the honor.

The Swiss Congress.
The regular sessions of the Swiss congress began in June and December and last only about a month. Extra sessions are very rare. As one member remarked, the idea is to have as much real legislation done among the people as possible, while the duty of the legislative bodies is officially to record public sentiment as expeditiously as possible. The proceedings of the Swiss legislature are extremely interesting to an American. Discussions take place either in French, German or Italian, according to the inclination of the legislator addressing the house, and a colloquy may embody all three languages. Formal readings are in French, but discussions are usually in German.—National Magazine.

A Business Woman.
"This wife is a business woman, all right."

"What makes you say that?"

"She's fastidious a time clock in the mill, and he has to punch it when he goes out nights and when he gets back."—Detroit Free Press.

A Natural Result.
"When you were in Switzerland did your party climb the glacier you spoke of?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I rather think because they got cold feet."—Exchange.

Great Saving of Life in Mine Accidents the Result Of Training Pennsylvania Miners Get in First Aid Work.

About three years ago, when the United States Laboratory, at the old Arsenal grounds, Pittsburgh, was just emerging from its infancy into lusty youth, representatives of bureaus of mining of foreign governments came to America to see tests of explosives and other experiments at the laboratory and to visit some of the model mines of the Pittsburgh region. By direction of the laboratory, the tests and each and all of the foreigners said to me that the experimental machinery and the intellectual equipment of the laboratory was more complete than any similar plant in their own countries.

At that time the laboratory was operated under direction of the Geological Survey at Washington. A Bureau of Mines had only been thought of. Then came the Bureau of Mines, with the Department of the Interior, with Dr. J. A. Holmes, who formerly directed the experiments as the chief of the Bureau of Mines. With additional equipment, authority and appropriation of money, the laboratory has increased its machinery for operation and other phases of the work until it is beyond all comparison the most elaborate and thorough institution of its type in all the world.

In the presence of this new and universal importance the Bureau of Mines by authority of the Government Department under which it operates, has organized a National Mine Safety Demonstration, the first in America and the first in the world which has never been approached in the world. From morning until night on the 20th and 21st of this month, these demonstrations will occupy every hour and minute. In this vast mining region the demonstrations will be of interest to all, but of profound interest to those immediately connected with mining and most especially to practical miners and operators as they have to do directly with prevention of explosions which have been so disastrous in the past years, with consideration for the safety of miners and their immediate relief in the event that explosions occur.

It is expected that more than 20,000 miners will be present, chosen representatives of important interests in every coal mining State. They will witness explosions of various kinds of explosives, the effect of them in varying conditions of gases and coal dust in the mine mines at the laboratory and at one to be erected at Forbes Field much larger than any that has yet been constructed; and not only this, but they will be brought to the experimental mine near Bruceton, a short distance from Pittsburgh, where explosions will be produced in an actual mine and the mine representatives brought into the mine immediately after to show them how quickly the shaft and rooms can be cleared of all cases.

All of the most approved machinery for safety and rescue will be exhibited in operation. More thrilling than any stage drama will be the actual explosions, the effect of them in varying conditions of gases and coal dust in the mine mines at the laboratory and at one to be erected at Forbes Field much larger than any that has yet been constructed; and not only this, but they will be brought to the experimental mine near Bruceton, a short distance from Pittsburgh, where explosions will be produced in an actual mine and the mine representatives brought into the mine immediately after to show them how quickly the shaft and rooms can be cleared of all cases.

Additional and exceptional interest will be given to the entire program by the fact that much of it will have the presence of President Taft, who "killed two birds with one stone" by coming on to the mine demonstrations and the Centenary of Steam Navigation on Pittsburgh's river.

Far more than anything that has yet occurred these demonstrations will be an illustration of the philosophy and humanity of the Congress in creating the Bureau of Mines. This action was in response to a demand not only of mining men but also to an aroused popular sentiment following terrible disasters, some of which in a moment snuffed out the lives of as many as 100 men; but by far the most fruitful source of loss of life in mines has not been the great disasters such as Monongah and Cherry, but, on the contrary, 65 per cent of this wholesale slaughter is due to those causes such as falls of rock, which pick off men here and there and which in the aggregate serve to make the death rate in American mines stupendous as well as deplorable.

In all, 20,000 men have been killed in American mines in the past 20 years or 25 men have been killed per year for each 1,000 employed, while in Belgium, a country having far deeper and much more noisy mines than the United States, the death rate has been for many years as low as one man per 1,000 employed, this being due to the fact that there, as in most foreign countries "safety first" has been a motto for half a century.

of injury to their fellow workmen would be able to apply first aid treatment in such skillful manner that the life of the victims might be saved.

Thousands of accidents occur each year underground, oftentimes millions from the mine opening, and the unfortunate victims in the past were loaded into mine cars and, after the truck had been cleared, were hauled to the surface behind a mule or motor, where they were met by a physician, whose efforts were often futile, because they were too late.

Today, wherever the teachings of the first aid experts of the Bureau of Mines has reached, conditions are different. Miners trained in first aid work may be found in all sections of the mine, and the skill of these men is so remarkably developed that injured men, after being sent to the surface on an easy stretcher, are often found to be so skillfully bandaged that the surgeons are required to make no further dressing.

In certain mines in Pennsylvania, where this work is well organized, this instruction and this alone, has resulted in reducing sick and death benefit payments 60 per cent. Certainly the work is commendable and it is the belief of many that it represents the greatest step that has been taken in progress of civilization in America since the foundation of the American National Red Cross Society.

The great meeting will be inaugurated, October 20, at J. A. M., when Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, Director of the Bureau of Mines, will make the welcome address. The following events will then occur successively:

Electrical laboratory showing the effect of breaking lighted incandescent lamps which are surrounded by an explosive mixture of gas and air.

Foundry cupola in operation and method of securing gas samples and taking temperature measurements for different zones in the coke bed for the purpose of studying the fundamentals of the process and possible improvements therein.

Operation of a gas producer when burning coke at high temperature, at high capacity and eliminating ash and chimney by slugging.

Smokeless combustion of low-grade fuel in boilers when using mechanical stokers.

Operation of the long combustion chamber, designed to make a comprehensive investigation of the processes of combustion in boiler furnaces and conditions requisite for complete combustion with coals of varying volatile matter, with various rates of firing and heating of coal with variations in the amount of air supply and in the rate of mixing of air with volatile combustibles.

Demonstration of the relative safety of single gauge and double gauge non-vented safety lamps, when subjected to a current of gas and air containing eight percent of methane and ethane at a known velocity. The training in a noxious atmosphere of men wearing different types of rescue apparatus.

Exhibition of apparatus for the physical testing of explosives including ballistic pendulum pressure gage calorimeter flame test apparatus rate of detonation apparatus large and small impact machines cone and pendulum friction devices and Trauzl and small lead blocks.

Demonstration of lignite and coal briquetting plant making briquets from California lignite.

Test of an electric mine motor surrounded by an explosive mixture of gas and air and provided with explosive proof device.

Gas and Dust Gallery No. 1: To demonstrate the effect of a charge of 10 per cent. nitroglycerin dynamite, tamped with one pound of dry fire clay, when fired into a mixture of gas and air containing seven per cent of methane and ethane.

To demonstrate the effect of a charge of 10 per cent. nitroglycerin dynamite, tamped with one pound of dry fire clay, when fired into a mixture of gas and air containing seven per cent of methane and ethane.

Illustrating the ignition of coal dust by means of the laboratory coal dust ignition apparatus devised and used by the Bureau of Mines.

Coal Mining Department, D. L. & W. R. L. Seranton, Pa.

Philadelphia & Reading Company, Pottsville, Pa.

Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company, Lansford, Pa.

Following these first aid demonstrations will occur the explosions in the monster Forbes Field dust gallery.

A permissible explosive, equal in disruptive force to one-half pound of 10 per cent nitroglycerin dynamite, tamped with one pound of dry clay, will be fired into the Forbes Field dust gallery. No explosion of the coal dust is expected.

This gallery is cylindrical, 135 feet long, with an internal diameter of six feet four inches, and represents an underground tunnel or part of a coal mine. The explosive is fired into the end of the gallery. Within the gallery are 135 pounds of fine coal dust from the Pittsburgh seam, distributed uniformly throughout, and 20 pounds on a wooden bench 20 feet long near the mouth of the cannon, making a total of 155 pounds of coal dust.

Demonstration of the use of birds in exploring mines after explosions of fire, at which carbon monoxide causes a large percentage of the fatalities. A few birds, which are much more sensitive to the effect of poisonous gas than men, can be taken into a mine with a rescue party, and as soon as they show signs of distress, the party can retreat to safety in the demonstrations, a man will enter a glass box, the atmosphere of which contains 0.25 of one per cent of carbon monoxide gas and remain there for some time after the birds have collapsed.

A charge of black blasting powder, equal in disruptive force to one-half pound of 10 per cent nitroglycerin, tamped with dry fire clay, will be fired into the gallery containing 155 pounds of bituminous coal dust, being the same dust and in this case an explosion of coal dust is anticipated.

Foreman miners of the Bureau of Mines, equipped with various types of artificial breathing apparatus, will enter the gallery immediately after the coal dust explosion and recover supposed victims of mine explosion. First aid miners of the Bureau of Mines will rescue those overcome by noxious gases, using artificial respiration and oxygen respirator apparatus. They will administer first aid to the injured, using in this demonstration only those things which might be near after an explosion in a mine.

The closing event of the day at Forbes Field will be the introduction of President Taft by Professor Holmes; presentation of medals to first aid teams, with addresses by Governor John K. Tener, Walter L. Fisher, Secretary of the Department of the Interior of the United States, and Miss Mabel Boardman of the Red Cross Society. The meeting will close with a parade of 19,927 miners before the President's reviewing stand, representing the 19,927 miners who have been killed in the mines of the United States in the last 20 years.

Speed cars will then carry the miners to the river front that they may witness the marine parade commemorative of the Centenary of the Opening of Steam Navigation.

The board of managers of these unparalleled demonstrations is composed of H. M. Wilson of the Bureau of Mines; Dr. M. J. Shields of the National Red Cross Society; S. A. Taylor, representing the coal operators of the United States; Francis Feehan of the United Mine Workers of America; and Thomas D. Dilte, representing the industrial department of the International Y. M. C. A. The general committee are: H. M. Wilson, chairman; J. W. Paul, Clarence Hall, L. M. Jones, Lawson Stoner, J. C. Roberts, J. K. Clement and C. S. Stevens, all of the Bureau of Mines explosion in a mine.

Some Figures for Track Walking by Youngwood Man Remarkable.

George A. Burns, the oldest track-walker in point of service on the Pennsylvania railroad, has just put his 177,900th mile behind him. In keeping vigil over the track placed in his care, he walked the equivalent of 7 1/2 times around the world in the last 35 years. Journeying four times a day

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to be free of any kind of urinary trouble, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the stinging and pain in the back, the growing muscle weakness, spots before the eyes, yellow skin, sluggish bowels, swollen ankles or ankles, leg cramps; urinary short breath; sleeplessness and then incontinence?

between Greensburg, Pa., and Youngwood yard, a distance of 335 miles, he has inspected 5,725,000 square plates on the job every hour in the twenty-four to smooth the path for the hurrying millions gliding over the rails.

Other Pennsylvania track watchmen who have distance records are William Young of Franklin, Pa., with 561,144 miles in 22 years and 3 months; Dennis Watters, Norristown, Pa., with 135,626 miles in 21 years; Simon Owens, Washington, D. C., with 135,626 miles in 23 years and 1 month; and Julius Hein of Edgewood, Md., who has covered 101,100 miles in 23 years and 3 months. These five men together have walked nearly a million miles.

Track inspection is reduced to an exact science on the Pennsylvania. A patrolman registers in the tower at the end of his beat the hour and minute of his arrival; reports on his journey and registers directly in the tower at the other end. He carries a registering clock, by which his trips can be checked to the minute. His route usually covers about four miles, but is less than half this on stretches where special watchfulness is needed. At night the inspector has only the light of his lantern to work by, but he must see that every frog, switch and signal is in good order.

If a nearby tree looks dangerous, he must report, so that it can be chopped down. An overhanging rock may become loose—the track-walker must know about it in time to avert a possible accident. The wash of waters must be looked after. Road crossings must be examined for danger to teams as well as to trains.

"Word of honor to a thief doesn't obtain," retorted the prosecutor. "Apart from that, Mrs. Darwin has informed me that she is about to make a charge of burglary against you. She is the only witness, and if you are sent to prison, as a common thief you will have the satisfaction of knowing that she sent you there. And you," he glanced toward the doorway where his wife stood listening, the packet in her hand, "will have the satisfaction of sending him there."

He turned again to Emerson and did not see that his wife slipped the envelope, which had contained his notes, into the bosom of her gown.

"All this apart from the fact that the Federal case against you and your father will be pressed to the uttermost—the uttermost," he went on, "the charge of burglary won't do you any good, and if certainly won't help you out of prison in crime. I shall send you all behind the bars for a long term of imprisonment."

"But your word," protested Emerson. "Your word—given in the presence of this man," he pointed to Hicks. Darwin waved him away. Emerson drew himself up and looked his contempt.

"It's worth just what I thought it was," he said with a shrug of the shoulders.

"Take him to the police station!" commanded Darwin. "You'll follow later."

Emerson turned to the woman with a grave bow.

"Mrs. Darwin," he said, "my only regret for to-night's work is the annoyance—the anguish—I have caused you. Please forgive me."

"Take him away!" cried Darwin, furiously. And without deigning to glance at the prosecutor again, Emerson followed the detective out of the room.

"You see," said Darwin, turning to Catherine, an ugly smile curling his lip. "I believe your story and am acting accordingly." It did not notice that her whole attitude and expression had changed.

"Now, where's that letter Mr. Cowper left here for me?" he demanded. "I don't know," she replied calmly, looking him squarely in the eyes. "It started and looked frightened."

"You don't know?" he gasped incredulously.

"I don't know," she repeated. "It started toward her excitedly."

"Why, I depend on this man Cowper's confession to convict these men!" he cried. "By God, you've given it to him! Answer me!"

"I have no answer to make."

"If you've given it to him then it's on him at the station," he said, recovering his self-possession. "Now, please dress as quickly as possible and come with me."

"I shall dress as quickly as possible, but I am not going with you," she replied in the same quiet voice. "I've started at her in rising alarm."

"Where are you going?" he demanded. "Anywhere away from you. I am going to leave you to-night."

Darwin saw that he had driven her too far, and it was time for some conciliation.

"Catherine," he said slowly, with the air of a man about to make a noble sacrifice, "now that this man is behind the bars I am willing to—in time, I may forgive—"

Her scornful laugh cut him short. "Forgive!" she cried bitterly. "What is there to forgive? My sympathizing with my friends in their misfortune? Forgive! You'll forgive, will you?"

"Ah! I'm sick of your canting hypocrisy! You boast that you hate evil and evil-doers, and you are far more evil than the worst of the wretches you persecute! You—who create the pitfalls for them to stumble into! You'll forgive, will you? If I'm a bad woman, will your forgiveness make me a good woman? If I am what you think I am, I don't deserve your forgiveness! If I'm not, I don't need it. In any case, I don't want it!"

Darwin managed to preserve an outwardly unmoved demeanor as he stood up under this lashing, and when she paused for breath, he demanded coldly: "Will you appear against this man?"

"Help you gratify your revenge? No! No! No!" she cried passionately.

"Your refusal is an admission of your guilt!" he declared. "All right! Then I'm guilty!" she cried. "And I glory in my guilt, for at least it will unlock this prison and set me free—free from all this impossible self-righteousness—free from this pose of holiness—free from a man whose sole purpose in life is to avenge—to punish—to inflict pain on the poor, fallen wretches who, when they stray, to rise out of the depths of their misfortune, are hurled back by the avenging hand of James Darwin! You have pronounced me guilty! So be it! I've lost my good name—my respectability—my honor! But my compensation—is—I have lost you!"

The Burglar Returns.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A THOUGHT, the appointment was for 8 o'clock. Raymond arrived at the Emerson house the next morning shortly before 8. Tooker followed a little later and on being informed that Mr. Cowper was in the smoking room they hurried.

Cowper had been there all night and he looked it. The whiskey bottle gave eloquent evidence also. "No," they asked questions about Emerson, he returned evasive replies, using strong "slugs" of straight eye by way of pacific.

"You can say what you like," fumed Raymond, chomping his cigar as he marched about the room. "I call it a suspicious circumstance!"

"I didn't say it wasn't," returned Tooker, unmoved, from his station by the window. "What I said was—Wilbur Emerson is a man of his word and if he said he'd be here, he'll be here!"

"But he isn't here!"

"There's a reason for it," Tooker assured him calmly.

"No reason," snapped Raymond, with several meanings.

"He told you to wait!" went on the other, addressing Cowper.

"And he's been out all night!" out in Raymond.

"Yes," said Cowper, weakly, reaching for the whiskey once more.

"They'll Arrest Us."

"We shan't see him again!" declared Raymond. "Where did he go?"

Raymond turned to Tooker as if he recognized the futility of attempting to extract useful information from Cowper.

"Where you at the bank this morning?" he demanded.

"Yes. They wouldn't let me in," was the calm reply.

"That looks bad!" and Raymond nearly swallowed his cigar as he gulped out the words. "The next move will be to arrest us!"

"That'll look worse, won't it?" commented Tooker, mildly.

Cowper suddenly straightened in his chair and thrust up both hands.

"Oh—oh! I'd only known!" he groaned. "It's Wilbur Emerson's fault—all his fault! Why did he insist on fighting the big syndicate? He might have known they'd crush us to pieces!"

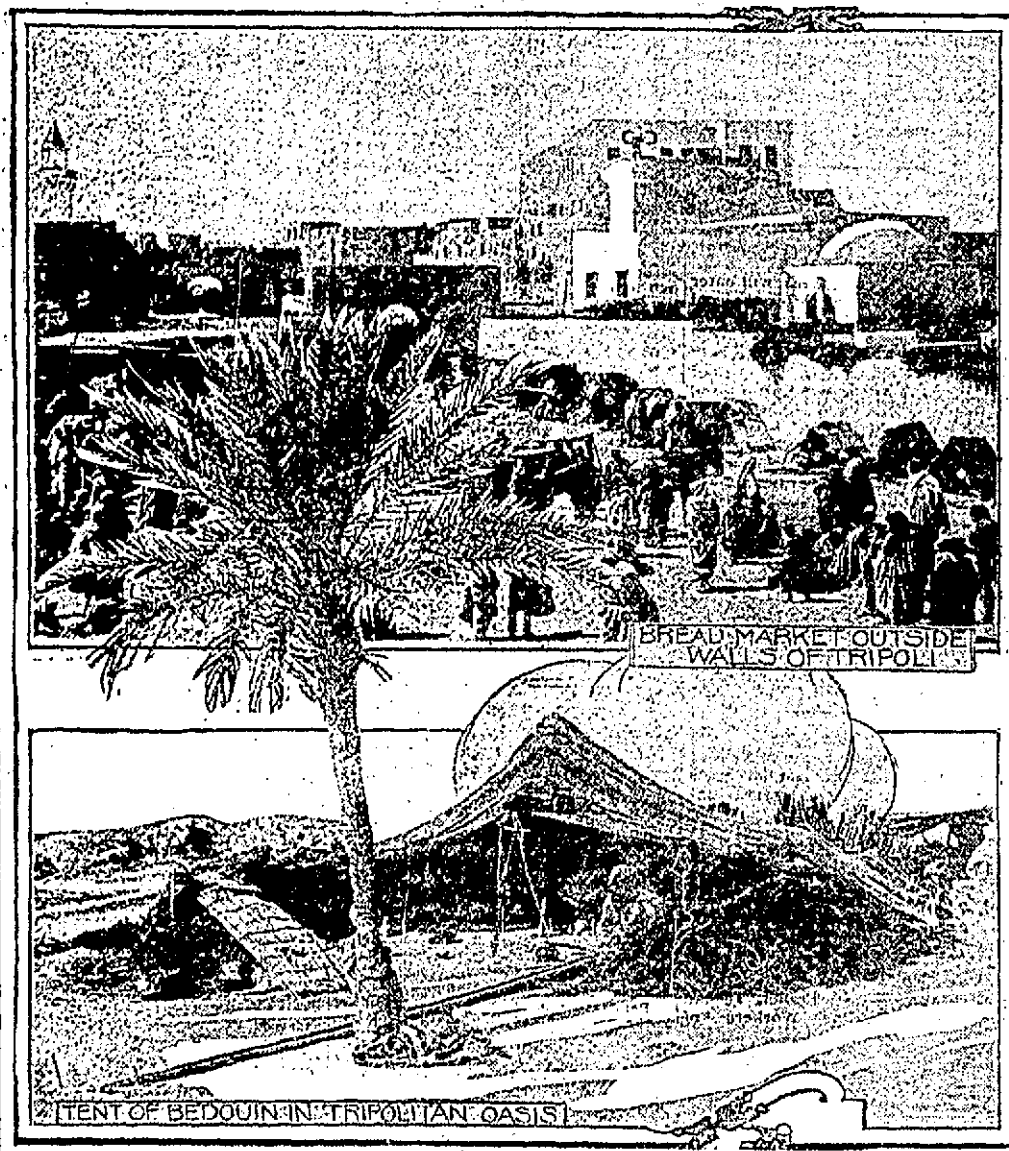

He seized the whiskey bottle feverishly and poured out another drink.

"For heaven's sake, don't drink any more," Cowper snorted Raymond, irritably. "That's your fifth this morning!"

"The other shivered."

Cowper is unstrung.

He was immaculately dressed, as was his custom, but there were deep lines of worry in his face.

"I've been unable to find any trace of Wilbur," he said, uneasily, after our "good morning" had been exchanged.

"He went out at 10 o'clock last night and has not yet returned."

"Gadding about," snapped Raymond, turning away impatiently. "At such a time as this!"

The old gentleman drew himself up and a dangerous light flickered in his eyes.

"What's a reason for it?" Tooker asked him calmly.

"No reason," snapped Raymond, with several meanings.

"He told you to wait!" went on the other, addressing Cowper.

"They'll Arrest Us."

"We shan't see him again!" declared Raymond. "Where did he go?"

Raymond turned to Tooker as if he recognized the futility of attempting to extract useful information from Cowper.

"Where you at the bank this morning?" he demanded.

"Yes. They wouldn't let me in," was the calm reply.

"I've been unable to find any trace of Wilbur," he said, uneasily, after our "good morning" had been exchanged.

"He went out at 10 o'clock last night and has not yet returned."

"Gadding about," snapped Raymond, turning away impatiently. "At such a time as this!"

The old gentleman drew himself up and a dangerous light flickered in his eyes.

"What's a reason for it?" Tooker asked him calmly.

"No reason," snapped Raymond, with several meanings.

"He told you to wait!" went on the other, addressing Cowper.

"And he's been out all night!" out in Raymond.

"Yes," said Cowper, weakly, reaching for the whiskey once more.

"They'll Arrest Us."

"We shan't see him again!" declared Raymond. "Where did he go?"

Raymond turned to Tooker as if he recognized the futility of attempting to extract useful information from Cowper.

"Where you at the bank this morning?" he demanded.

"Yes. They wouldn't let me in," was the calm reply.

THE SOISSON.

"Billy the Kid."

Of the many successes in dramatic plays which have been produced the past six seasons, those with their scenes laid in the western country have appeared to have appealed more strongly to the fancy of the theatre-goers.

A play with its scenes placed in the great southwest, near the Mexican border, is now being presented by the popular young actor, Nolan Gane.

It is called "Billy, the Kid" and is said to tell a story that appeals to all classes of amusement lovers.

The plot is well conceived, there are innumerable strong dramatic situations and there is plenty of comedy.

Some of the scenes are said to be especially realistic and the production a very elaborate one. "Billy, the Kid," with Mr. Gane in the leading role will come to the Soisson Wednesday, Oct. 11, matinee and night.

Manhattan Gaiety Girls. The engagement of the Manhattan Gaiety Girls at the Soisson on Monday, Oct. 16, promises to be one of remarkable success, judging by the talk already created around town.

The company is a large and capable one and present the style of performance that will always be popular, abounding in handsome women, witty comedians and tinsel music, all rendered in that snappy, rapid style prevalent in the better class of burlesque shows.

"Buster Brown." A bright young lady writer, on a prominent Pittsburg paper, said of "Buster Brown" that it was an entertainment "for young people and people who stay young." A more expressive description has never been written. This big, favorite company will be seen here Tuesday, Oct. 17, and is said to be better than ever.

Plays and Players. J. Hartley Manners, author of "The House Next Door," has just finished another play for J. E. Dodson.

W. L. Griffith, author of "The Dominion of Canada," is chief secretary of the high commissioner of Canada.

Wallace Irwin has written the book and Walter Damrosch the music of a new comic opera entitled "The Dove of Peace."

Hazel Kierke has been engaged by Lew Fields for the role of the prima donna in his forthcoming production of "The Bignoli."

Annette Kellerman is ambitious to go on the legitimate stage. She is looking for a play in which she can introduce her diving act.

Henry B. Harris will soon produce "The Talker," a new play by Miss Marion Fairfax, in which her husband, Tully Marshall, will have the leading role.

Tim Murphy has begun his season in "The New Code," which he will use until the new year, when he will produce a modern comedy by Paul Winstach.

May Irwin has chosen her play for the present season. It is a new comedy called "Mrs. Tarnham," by Agnes L. Grimwath, a new and unknown playwright.

William Faversham and Mrs. Faversham, who was Miss Julia O'By, will appear in a new play this season by Edward Knoblauch, called "The Discovery of America."

Joe Walsh, the well known character comedian, is at present considering a proposition from H. H. Hayes, to star in a new musical comedy by Herbert Hall Winslow.

"The Hope," a sporting melodrama in four acts and 16 scenes, in which there is a fire and an earthquake, had its first performance at the Drury Lane theatre, London.

Vaudeville will soon lose Naclyn Arbuckle. In January he is to return to New York in "Colonel Todhunter of Mississippi," dramatized by himself and (William F. Day of the rejected "Circus Man."

Forbes-Robertson and his company will depart for this country from England on October 14, again to present "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." A niece of the star, Miss Maud Buchanan, will have the role of Stacia.

Lena Cleveland is at present negotiating for the dramatic rights of "Dull Jim," by Luther Long, the story of which appeared several months ago in a magazine. Miss Cleveland sees great dramatic possibilities in the story.

Ty Cobb, the star outfielder of the Detroit American League baseball team, is to become a real actor this winter. He has been engaged by Vaughan Glaser, a theatrical manager of Detroit, to play the role of Billy Bolton in George Ade's "College Widow." The play has been adapted so that Billy Bolton will display his prowess as a baseball star instead of a football hero.

THE SUPREME COURT MEETS ON MONDAY.

There Are Nearly Eight Hundred Cases to Be Disposed Of.

NUMBER ARE IMPORTANT ONES

But None That Command as Much Interest as Did the Standard Oil and Tobacco Dissolution Suits Before the Court a Year Ago.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—After a four months' vacation the Supreme Court of the United States will convene Monday for the term of 1911-12. The docket is crowded with 751 cases, as compared with 696 cases a year ago at this time. No case of anything like equal importance with the Standard Oil and Tobacco dissolution suits is on the docket, but there are a number of important and interesting matters that will come before the court for adjudication.

The court is expected to take up first of all the numerous cases involving the activity of State railroad commissions. There are more than 50 cases of this kind to be decided. As all of them are related, it is probable the court will hear them as nearly together as possible. There are 26 rate cases from Missouri alone, three from Minnesota, including that decided by Judge Sutherland, which agitated the governors' conference at Spring Lake recently, and several from Oklahoma and Kentucky. The opinions of the supreme tribunal in these cases probably will be definitely the constitutional limits of State railroad commissions and circumscribe the powers they may exercise in the way of fixing the rates of common carriers in interstate traffic.

Several important cases have come over from the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Government questions the right of railroads to make concessions to elevators holding that it is robbing. The St. Louis Terminal Company, owing to bridges over the Mississippi river, is being brought to the bar on the question of its being a monopoly in restraint of trade. Another issue that will be fought out early in the term is whether the stockyards in the large cities are common carriers within the meaning of the interstate commerce laws. A case against the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road is expected to lead to a decision as to whether a railroad may transport sheep through a State into another State when the State through which the sheep pass is under quarantine.

The battle for the initiative and referendum, the foundation stone of the Oregon primary system, will be fought before the court early in November. In view of the fact that numerous States already have followed the example of Oregon in adopting the initiative and referendum and others are preparing to do so, the decision in this case will have far-reaching consequences. The matter comes to the Supreme Court as an appeal in a suit brought by the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company against the State of Oregon to test the constitutionality of the initiative and referendum law.

Among the most important cases on the docket are several that were held over from last term. Included in the list are the cases involving the validity of the indictment of Charles E. Munday and others, growing out of the so-called Stracy coal land claims in Alaska, and of the indictment of James A. Patten and others on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in "cornering" the cotton market. The review of the trial of Frederick A. and others on charges of land frauds on the Pacific coast will constitute still another important case.

The court also will hear arguments in the Oklahoma land fraud cases, which are four in number and are typical of 201 suits brought by the Government to invalidate 70,000 or more conveyances by Indians, of titles to real estate, which the Government claims were fraudulent conveyances.

Labor has one important case from Louisiana in which an employer is being prosecuted for permitting a laborer to work more than eight hours in one day. Also of importance to the labor world is the case brought to test the constitutionality of the federal employers' liability act of 1908.

The court has been asked to interpret a treaty between the United States and Italy. The case in question involves the right of an Italian consul to take charge of the estate of an Italian subject dying in this country—California—contrary to the local laws.

Not the least of the problems before the Supreme Court is the necessity of relieving the congestion which threatens to clog the administration of justice if measures are not taken by Congress for its relief. As before stated, there are now more than 700 cases on the docket, with the probability that fully 100 additional cases will be filed before the end of the term. The average number of cases that can be decided by the court in a year is about 100, and this is somewhat high. It is apparent, therefore,

VALUE OF A PAINTED DOG.

The One Sir Edwin Landseer Put in His Brother's Picture.

The late Charles Landseer, the brother of Sir Edwin, gained his election as academician with a picture called "The Eve of the Battle of Edge Hill." A curious and interesting story attaches to this picture.

When it was nearly finished Edwin Landseer was asked by Charles to come and look at it and remarked that it was a very good picture, but "how nice a spaniel would look in that corner!" Charles said, "Will you put it in, then?" at which the master took up the brush and at once painted in a fine old English spaniel with some leather dispatch bags lying on the ground by him.

The picture was duly exhibited and admired, the spaniel especially, but the dealer who bought it, being a simple man of business, betthought him that Sir Edwin's dog would be worth more than the whole picture. So he coolly cut it out and sold it, filling the place by a common dog copied from it. Several years afterward the owner of the picture showed Sir Edwin, with some pride, the picture in which he had painted the dog, but the great master declared he'd be hanged if ever he did that dog. The picture was examined more closely, and then the trick was found out—London Tatler.

Ancient Tales of the Law.
Of law and the "law's delays" these ancient tales are recorded:

A woman vainly pleading her case many times before Philip of Macedonia received at every refusal the reply that he "had not the time." At last her patience gave out and she said to him, "Then cease to reign." The monarch, feeling that he had deserved this rebuke, immediately listened to her and rendered the justice that her case merited.

Anacharsis, the Scythian philosopher, speaking of the laws of Solon, said, "They were like the web of a spider—very good for holding the weak, but allowing the strong to escape."

A petty thief was being led to prison. Dogones said to him: "Fool, why didn't you rob a grand scale? Then it would have been you that would be sending others to prison."

The Painter and the Cobbler.
The painter Apelles, who flourished in the time of Alexander, was shown a picture by an inferior artist who boasted of having sketched it out in an exceedingly short space of time. "Yes, I can see that very well," said Apelles, "but I am surprised that you did not make several other pictures exactly like this in the same space of time."

We are indebted, according to tradition, to this same Apelles for one of our common phrases. The painter had listened with patience and profit to a cobbler's criticism of the sandals in a picture. But when the cobbler began to enlarge the field of his criticism to other parts of the painting he received this rebuke from Apelles: "Shoemaker, stick to your last."

Dangers Lurk in Cereal Foods; Supplies Should Be Kept Fresh.
Special to The Courier.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 7.—Announcement made a few days ago from the State Food Bureau concerning cereal food preparations having called forth many inquiries. Dairy and Food Commissioner Foult thinks it is timely to make a frank statement of the evils discovered by the Bureau in connection with this particular trade and to warn dealers of the measures that will be taken to stop the existing abuses.

There is no criticism, the Commissioner remarks, of the food quality of the average breakfast cereal when it is sold in a fresh condition to the consumer, but it is well known to all dealers that these preparations are very liable to insect attack unless the greatest care be taken to keep the stock fresh and to store in places where the danger of such attack is least. Past examinations by the Bureau have revealed numerous cases in which the contents of packages were simply alive with vermin and cobwebbed with the threads woven by the insect larvae they contained.

The commissioner recognizes the conditions confronting the retailer in keeping his stock of breakfast foods fresh, and wholeheartedly makes a careful comparison of the 100 to 150 brands of such foods on sale in the State and find that in reality there are only 12 to 15 species of breakfast foods that differ at all distinctly one from the other, and yet nearly every week sees community after community canvassed by agents presenting samples of some new breakfast food, taking orders for the same and turning them over to the local grocers supplying these several families, with the demand that he add this new name to his stock, despite the fact that his shelves are already crowded with the one hundred other brands. And immediately thereafter the same merchants are induced to stock largely with this new name! variety by reason of quantity discounts. The demand for the goods earlier in stock, temporarily, or permanently stops, but the goods remain on the shelves and are held there for months, or even for years, with the vain hope that the breakfast food fashions may turn and the old stock become salable. Under this condition of affairs "every bug has his day."

The difficulties of the retailer under these conditions are recognized, but the rights of the consumer for protection
